Lithang adopts point system for party building, Sichuan

December 15, 2021

Shangmula town, Lithang, has started 'party building+ point system' from November 2021. The villagers are controlled and evaluated according to their behaviour in daily life and participation in implementing the party's guidelines and village regulations. The point system of individuals and families are adopted 'to further strengthen the implementation of party building and consciously abide by the village rules and folk's conventions, patriotism and abiding by the law, hard work to get rich, neighbourhood unity, care for environmental sanitation, etc'.

Party members, families, and the masses of the township are all included in point management and a basic score of 100 points is set. Various skills training, night school for farmers and herdsmen, and participation in mass meetings merit a rating as 'advanced individuals', 'model families' and other 'advanced models'. Points will be added according to different levels. And points will be deducted if anyone is disregarding integrity, not supporting the construction of public utilities, damaging public facilities, not implementing the correct decisions of the two village committees, and violating village rules and people's agreements etc. The Shangmula Township uses different platforms to promote and advertise this new initiative such as WeChat workgroups, mass meetings, night schools for farmers and herdsmen, and home to home propaganda and publicity.

The Party branch of each village establishes a point ledger and exchange ledger with each household as a unit. According to Gerong Cina, Secretary of the Township, “Everything from small environmental sanitation to large-scale hard work for party building and getting rich has the scope for points”. He further added that due to the competition to win more points, many villagers ‘have become more civilized and acquired moral qualities. Reward points that exceed the target line are redeemable in cash or an exchange for items from the village exchange ledger.

Each village conducts monthly evaluations on each household. The top five villagers with a score higher than 90 points will be issued a red flag, and the bottom 5 villagers with a score of less than 80 will be issued a yellow flag. Villagers with a yellow flag are required to rectify and improve their demerits within the given period.

China forcibly demolished 99-foot Buddha Statue in Drago, Sichuan

December 24, 2021

A 99-foot statue of Buddha, built with a financial contribution of 4,000,000 Yuan from local Tibetans in Drago (Ch: Luhuo 炉霍) County, Kardze Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan Province was destroyed under the instruction of the local Chinese government. The demolition took place from December 12 onwards. The authorities deployed a heavy presence of military troops at the crossroads of its vicinity to prevent any form of protest. Over 45 huge prayer wheels erected near Drago Monastery were also destroyed and large vertical prayer flags were removed from their staves and burned.

Local sources mentioned to Tibet Watch that the statue was constructed with the full approval of the local authorities, and those overseeing the construction plans paid great attention to detail in following the tradition of respecting the location, time, cardinal direction and layout of the projects. However, during the demolition, the local Chinese authorities invalidated the documents related to these constructions and said that a statue of that height was not allowed.

Construction of the Buddha’s statue was officially completed in October 2015. It depicted a specific hand gesture known in Sanskrit as ‘Bhumisparsha mudra’, literally translated as ‘touching the earth’.

The destruction of both, the statue and the row of huge prayer wheels, has profoundly infringed on the freedom and dignity of lay Tibetans and the monastic community, for whom these form a tangible part of expressing and continuing their history, religion, and culture on a daily basis.

The present County Chief of Drago, Serta is Wang Dongsheng. He was one of the key officials involved in the widespread destruction of the Larung Gar Buddhist Academy.

Chinese astronomers signed an agreement with officials of the Qinghai provincial government on December 22 2021 in Beijing to jointly build a world-class astronomical observation base on the Qinghai-Tibet Plateau, known as "the roof of the world." After three years of monitoring, researchers from the National Astronomical Observatories under the Chinese Academy of Sciences found that the Lenghu area, which is located on the Saishiteng Mountain in the north-western province of Qinghai, would be an ideal location to build an astronomical observatory.

According to scientists, the construction of the Lenghu astronomical observation base will provide key support for the development of optical astronomy, planetary science and deep space explorations in China. The area has the potential to become one of the world's best observatory sites, as good as the existing sites in Hawaii and Chile due to the region's clear night skies, stable atmospheric conditions and dry climate.

More than 60 US lawmakers urge Biden administration to prioritize Tibet issue

December 16, 2021

More than 60 US senators and Representatives, both Democrats and Republicans, have called on President Joe Biden's Administration to prioritize the Tibet issue, including by engaging with Tibet's exiled spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama, and bringing renewed or changed focus on aspects of its existing policy. In particular, the lawmakers have called on the Biden Administration's presumptive coordinator for Tibetan issues to push for a meeting between President Biden and the Dalai Lama, fully implement US laws on Tibet, and end the practice of calling Tibet a part of China.

Leading the move to write the letters were Marco Rubio, R-Fla., and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., in the Senate and Jim McGovern, D-Mass., and Chris Smith, R-NJ, in the House.

Zeya currently serves as Under Secretary of State for Civilian Security, Democracy and Human Rights – the position that has traditionally doubled as the Special Coordinator for Tibetan issues. The Tibetan Policy Act of 2002 mandates the appointment of the special coordinator.

The letters' highlights include a suggestion that President Biden invite the Dalai Lama to the Oval Office—as several of his predecessors had done—or meet with him in his exile home of India, among other options. They called for resisting China's attempts to interfere in the religious process for the recognition and enthronement of the Dalai Lama's successor. They also called for ensuring full implementation of the Reciprocal Access to Tibet Act of 2018 to enable unencumbered access to Tibet for US journalists, diplomats and ordinary citizens. Besides, they called on the Biden Administration to make efforts to produce forward movement on resuming talks between the two sides on the Tibet issue.

In keeping with the State Department's 2020 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices, which for the first time did not refer to Tibetan areas as “part of the People's Republic of China,” the Congress members have urged the State Department to continue excluding that phrase, both to promote dialogue without preconditions and to show respect for the rights and history of Tibetans. The letters also call for support for Tibetan political prisoners, Tibetan refugees in Nepal, Tibetan language and culture, and many other things.
